

Curriculum Development in Science

Although curriculum development is a tough job in science education, we have this class contents divided into two parts for fostering learners' abilities in curriculum design. In the beginning, some foreign science curriculum were introduced especially the American science curriculum, and learning some theory of curriculum developing. Finally, explored Taiwan science curriculum and training students how to develop science textbooks.