

Qualitative Data Analysis

This course will introduce the characteristics of different research methods, such as case study, action study and interpretative study. Thus, some good articles related to above methods will be explored.

In addition, the research design , data collection and data analysis will be studied. Furthermore, the techniques of constant comparisons and triangulations will be highlighted for promoting research validity and reliability.